

THEOPHILUS VAN RENSBURG LINDZTER

Born in the Western Cape, South Africa, I have been fortunate to live and work in several parts of this beautiful world.

The foundational-, life-giving- and sometimes painful experiences of the first 3 decades of my life in South Africa shaped a deep yearning in me to value the dignity of every single human being.

Over the last 30 years, that foundation propelled me to leverage my giftedness, abilities, resources and enriching journeys on four continents for the upliftment of others.

I have been and still find myself committed to practically live out that aspiration in the spheres of leadership & teacher professional development, technology-assisted learning, vocational training, literature-based competence development and wisdom-driven character development and upliftment initiatives.

My travels and work in South Africa, Sweden, USA, China, Belgium and Italy enlarged the quality of my life through meaningful networking moments with people who have unselfishly shared their knowledge and skills with me.

In recent years, from all of the segments in society whom I have been honoured to serve, the high-stakes rural communities in the country of my birth have been lodged firmly in my orbit of work.

That is why, for their benefit and upliftment, I am currently partnering with individuals, schools, Universities, NGOs, corporate and government agencies in South Africa and around the world. The aim is to advocate and facilitate for the realisation of an ecosystem where the implementation of innovative, frugal learning and living solutions bring meaning and purpose to individuals, families, their communities and this world.

My current roles as teacher, manager and leader in a formal learning environment and within the mission of the NGO, Learning Academy Worldwide are precious opportunities to leverage for projects that bring real and meaningful change.
